

Lois McLachlan Organisational Coach and Consultant

Lois McLachlan is a Melbourne-based Alliance Partner of Newfield Institute. Lois' purpose is to inspire individuals and organisations to realise their full potential and to facilitate this through coaching, consulting and training.

She works comfortably with all levels within organisations to enable individuals and teams to deal successfully with change, to improve their productivity & performance whilst improving work/life balance, to develop leadership capacity, to facilitate the development of high performance teams, and to generate effective cultural transformation.

Lois has more than 20 years experience operating at management and senior management levels within multi-national organisations in Australia. Her most recent corporate positions were as CFO for NIKE Australia, and Project Manager for Hewlett-Packard. Both positions required leading and working with high performance teams in Australia, New Zealand and Asia Pacific.

In her corporate work, Lois used the principles of coaching and mentoring in staff development and change management, and now, as a qualified Ontological Practitioner, is utilising these skills in her career as an organisational Consultant and Coach.

She works with a number of private and public companies in a wide range of industries, as well as organisations within the government sector.

To contribute to the growth of the Ontological approach, Lois is a co-facilitator and Program Coach in the Newfield Institute Vocational Graduate Diploma of Ontological Coaching.
