

Tiina Alliksaar Organisational Coach and Consultant

Tiina Alliksaar is an experienced organisational consultant and leadership coach operating as a Melbourne-based Alliance Partner of Newfield Institute.

She works predominantly with senior leaders and managers within organisations to enable them to deal successfully with change, to develop talent and leadership capacity in others, to facilitate the development of high performance teams and to generate effective cultural transformation.

Tiina has had more than 20 years experience operating at executive and senior management levels within multi-national organisations in Australia and the UK. Her most recent corporate position was Marketing Director with John Sands (Australasia) Ltd, leading high performance teams based in Melbourne, Sydney and Auckland, NZ.

A qualified Ontological Practitioner, Tiina has used the principles of coaching and mentoring for many years in terms of staff development and change management, and has been passionate about utilising these skills in her career as an organisational consultant and coach.

Tiina now works with a range of clients in the government sector, and with private and public companies in Australia.
